

10

09

08

07

06

05

04

03

02

01 Micro

L 01

Surveying fairy shrimp in three small vernal pools on a marine corps base

They may look like mud puddles in winter and dust bowls in summer. But vernal pools house hundreds of organisms. Links in the food chain. Endangered species. To maintain those links, the ten percent of coastal pools that still exist in California have to be preserved and new ones created. It's about more than aesthetics.